

Kim Campbell received a BA in Philosophy from the University of Oregon and a Master's Degree in Art Therapy from Marylhurst College. She worked as a professional art therapist until 1997.

Kim's interest in photography began at The University of Oregon, and quickly won the grand prize award in a competition with 5,000 other female photographers for her photograph entitled Adrian the Conquerer. The photograph was published in Popular Photography magazine that same year.